

MEDIA RELEASE

OVERSEAS VOTING FOR GENERAL ELECTION 2025

There is a total of 2,758,846 registered voters for General Election 2025 (GE2025), of which, 18,389 successfully registered as overseas voters. The breakdown of overseas voters by electoral divisions is at Annex A.

2 The breakdown of overseas voters by the mode of overseas voting, i.e. voting by post or in-person at overseas polling stations, is as follows:

(a) Voting by post: 9,759

(b) Voting in-person at overseas polling stations¹: 8,630 (see Annex B for breakdown by overseas polling station)

3 Overseas Singaporeans who have successfully applied to be overseas voters will receive an official email from the Elections Department. Applicants may also log in to ELD's Voter Services to check their application outcome.

4 The Elections Department will also notify overseas voters via email on the polling process after Nomination Day should their electoral division be contested.

Registered overseas voters who are back in Singapore on Polling Day

5 If the registered overseas voter (whether he has registered to vote by post or at an overseas polling station) is back in Singapore on Polling Day, he may vote at his allotted polling station in Singapore, if he has not already voted. The details of his allotted polling station in Singapore are in the poll card, which will be sent to his registered Singapore NRIC address or local contact address. These details will also be available after Nomination Day in the voter's ePoll card, which is accessible on the Singpass app and ELD's Voter Services using Singpass.

6 At the polling station in Singapore, the registered overseas voter will have to declare that he has not already voted in the same election before he can be issued a ballot paper for voting.

7 Every voter is allowed to vote only once during an election, either from overseas or at the polling station in Singapore that has been allotted to him.

ISSUED BY
